Management's Discussion of Fund Performance

SUMMARY OF RESULTS

Multimanager Lifestyle Aggressive Portfolio (Class R6/JULAX) returned 20.72% for the year ended August 31, 2026. Global equities produced sizable gains in the 12-month period that ended on August 31, 2026. Investors were encouraged by the favorable combination of healthy economic growth trends, robust corporate earnings, and generally supportive central bank policies, together with optimism about artificial intelligence. While technology stocks performed very well, the value style outpaced growth on a global basis and contributed meaningfully to the markets' strong showing. Emerging market equities also posted outsized returns. Bonds registered more modest gains, led by credit-oriented investments. Income was the primary contributor to total returns for fixed income instruments, as prices came under pressure from concerns about persistent inflation, global conflicts, energy prices, and mounting government debt across the developed world.

TOP PERFORMANCE CONTRIBUTORS

Equity allocation | U.S. equities made the most significant contribution to absolute performance, including the fund's sizable allocation to large caps. International developed market equities further helped results, as did emerging market stocks. The real assets portfolio was an additional contributor with strong returns for the energy and metals & mining sectors.

Bond funds | The fixed-income allocation also contributed, albeit to a much lesser extent than equities due to its lower return and modest portfolio weighting.

TOP PERFORMANCE DETRACTORS

Specific positions | At a time of positive returns for most segments of the financial markets, the majority of the fund's holdings recorded a gain. However, small positions in U.S. Treasury STRIPS (Separate Trading of Registered Interest and Principal of Securities) were adversely affected by rising yields.
